

Karen Langona received her B.S. degree in Computer Science from Sao Paulo State University (UNESP), Bauru, Brazil, in 1990, her M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in Electrical Engineering from the University of Sao Paulo, Sao Carlos and Sao Paulo, Brazil, in 1994 and 2000, respectively, and her MBA degree from the University of Michigan, Ross School of Business, Ann Arbor, USA, in 2005. Karen spent several years of her career as part of the faculty in top ten Brazilian and American Universities. While working at the universities, besides teaching computer classes, she led special programs to deliver training for government and corporate units, implemented learning centers to provide support to engineering students on programming classes, and established partnerships with companies to bring cutting-edge technologies to the students. After completing her MBA program she joined Ford Motor Company as a Project Manager. During the period Karen worked for Ford she had opportunities to led projects in different areas of the business. Currently she is the project manager for a joined cloud-computing project between Ericsson Research (Sweden) and University of Sao Paulo (Brazil), Laboratory of Architecture and Computer Networks, Polytechnic School.